

OVERHEARD

Papers speak

Several papers about the underhand dealings of a Chief secretary (ACS), who thinks he is the cleverest of all officers in the state, have come out into the open. This bureaucrat has been under impression that no officers will speak against him. But the officers he has always trusted have leaked out those papers. The name of his daughter may also figure in those dealings, and the ACS is aware of it. So he is trying to get out of the sticky situation by fair means or foul. The ACS wishes to become the chief secretary, but, if the papers become public before the Vidhan Sabha elections, the government may be in trouble. That is why all efforts are being made to hush up the matter. His detractors say they have not found as big a swindler as this bureaucrat.

In high spirits

An additional chief secretary-rank officer, angry with the government for putting the chill on him, is happy after coming out of Mantralaya. He was gnashing his teeth, because he was not made the chief secretary. So, he decided not to work in Mantralaya. After he had left Mantralaya, it was thought that his chance to become the CS in case the present government should return to power would end. The head of the government is angry with him. The Chief Minister did not post him to the place where he is now, but this has not affected the officer known for honesty. Many Congress leaders have begun to praise the officer. An important leader in the party has recently said if the Congress formed government, this ACS would be made chief secretary. Besides being honest, this officer is efficient. So, he deserves this post.

Being spied

An IAS officer is being spied because of the agitation launched by upper caste. Besides the government, the police are keeping an eye on his activities including whom he is meeting and talking. How he is collecting funds for the stir is being watched, besides. Being angry with the government, he has opened a front. He conducted meetings of many retired bureaucrats and stirred them up against the government. It is said that he has played an important role in the agitation. The representatives of the movement seek his advice on important issues. This officer was given an unimportant post. There was no error on his part, though. And, after that, he has been working against the government. This officer has lot of clout in the districts he was posted to and may damage the BJP in several assembly constituencies in the upcoming elections.

The return

A principal secretary (PS) who has returned to the state from the Centre on deputation does not seem to be keen on staying in MP for a long period. The officials of the department the PS is posted to feel that the bureaucrat does not want to remain there. After the Vidhan Sabha elections, either he will return to Delhi or get transferred to another department. Though the unit he is heading is important, there is no creative work there. The officer, always keen on doing something new, finds the place dull. It is said that if the NDA government returns to power for the second time, he will be posted to the Centre. The PS is the in-charge of a department of the MP government in Delhi. So, he is keeping the house there.

Disturbed

A minister is concerned about collecting funds for the ensuing elections. He expected that he would be able to arrange enough money before the polls. Accordingly, he made a proposal and sent it to the ACS of his department. The officer's disagreement with him over the proposal threw cold water on his fund-collection plans. Now, the minister does not know how to collect such a huge amount of money as is required for fighting an election. In fact, the minister has no importance in the department. Everything happens according to the wishes of the ACS. Whenever the minister asks for any work, the ACS mentions the names of such senior RSS and BJP leaders that the minister does not dare utter a single word. The minister has become financially so weak that he may need to borrow money to fight the ensuing elections. The people close to him say that if he loses the election this time, his political career will end.

On voyage

A principal secretary (PS) on a constitutional post is on foreign tour these days. His wife is also with him. The conference the PS was to attend was in Canada, but the aim of the officer was to meet his son. After the conference, he went to his son for a week. According to government rules, if a conference continues for six days, the leave period for it is treated as three days, but, for the PS, there is no compulsion to follow the rules. He employs his own rules in department he works for. However, the most important part of his tour is that he is bearing all the expenses of his wife. Both of them work in the same department that recently saw several controversies. After that, the officer has gone on foreign tour to relax. Since his family is associated with politics, he is keeping an eye on the upcoming elections.

ROAD ACCIDENTS ON RISE IN MP

Road mishaps can be averted with sensible driving, claim authorities

"It is irrational to blame roads. Students should be taught traffic rules and nuances of driving in schools curriculum. This will not only help them become perfect drivers but also better navigation aid to the elders who drive them around," says ASP traffic

Dial 100 data (see tables) shows that number of road accidents is on the rise in MP. The big question facing authorities and people is to identify the real problem in that if it is the good roads or the bad driving habits which leads to more accidents.

ASP traffic Arvind Dubey said, "It is irrational to blame the good roads for the if students are versed in traffic rules and nuances of driving, they will not just become perfect drivers but also better navigation aid to the elders who drive them around."

He added "It is high time that a course on driving and traffic rules should be introduced in the school curriculum and passing it should be made mandatory."

Roads in MP, which were once considered bad, are now being compared with those in Washington.

Chief engineer of the public works department Akhilesh Upadhaya claimed that between 2003 and 2018 not just the length of roads but importantly the maintenance and renovations of the roads too has improved.

He told Free Press that the length of district main roads had increased from 11,051 kilometres (km) to 22,129 kilometres and the length of national highways have increased from 47.22 km to 11,822 km.

Upadhaya said that the fund for maintenance has increased from Rs 30 crore to Rs 710 crore in 2018.

He claimed that the government is trying to build better roads in MP, and about accidents he said, "Roads are constructed ac-ording to best practices of road engineering."

Dubey too second his opinion, "It is irrational to blame the good roads for the accidents. The pressure of vehicles, on the roads, is increasing by the day."

He added that along with heavy traffic, rash driving, lack of patience and use of mobile while driving too are the reasons for increased accidents.

"Importantly the drivers lack civic sense, they violate traffic rules at will including over speeding."

He added "Better roads give the opportunity to the drivers to run the vehicles
